I am very concerned about the types of shows American children are exposed to. As a 3rd grade teacher, I see the profound effects of television on children's academics and behavior. My 8 and 9 year old students are well informed about sex, violence, and drugs - Thanks to television!

Test scores are at an all time low and are getting even lower! Behavior is so terrible that teaching is almost impossible.

Most parents do not monitor the types of shows their children watch so we can not rely on

FEDERAL COMMUNICATIONS COMMISSION
OFFICE OF THE SECRETARY

Dear Mr. Secretary:

Violence on television has escalated in the last ten years. It's about time responsible citizens assist the government in controlling this disease that will destroy our children's moral and influence poor decisions.

My purpose in writing is to offer suggestions for children's programming and to request the names of producers that may be interested in materials I've written for children that are presently used in my school district.

Children today lack guidance! Storybook characters could be used to help children make good decisions when confronted with bad choices. (Gangs, drugs, manners, tolerance of others). I was able to effectively guide students and parents through making good choices by using storybook characters.

You probably have a favorite storybook character that you remember as a child that you loved reading and talking about. Children enjoy listening to stories about animal characters and their adventures.

Again, thank you for the opportunity to share ideas for children's programs. I would appreciate your forwarding me the names of television producers that may be interested in new materials for children programming.

Sincerely,

Vashti Dixon Killingbeck
